Sommers, went to Frankfort and gave himself up, hath no fury like a woman scorned. when he was allowed bail in $500, ex-Auditor Gen. Fayette Hewitt becoming his bondsman. The trial was set for April 26 and Sommers has gotten Senator Blackburn to represent him. Many lawyers hold that the indictment is not good, even if the charge; can be proved, as the law against bribery in such matters holds good only in primary and final elections, and not in conventions.

WHILE it is indicting, what is the matter with the Franklin grand jury bringing in a true bill against T. F. Pilcher? It is stated that in a deal with McChord, whereby he is to get the secretaryship of the railroad commission. Pilcher withdrew from the contest in his favor. If this is true, it is bribery of a more reprehensible nature than that charged to Sommers. Besides the consideration is ten times as great and the punishment ought to be in proportion. GEN. HARDIN gives a new and only reason for his defeat in 1895 in nearly every speech. "First he said that the platform endorsement of Cleveland did counted out and again that he sacrificed himself on the altar of free silver. His obstinacy also sacrificed the democratic party, which will, we hope, steer clear James Lynn were killed. of nominating him again.

As Col. A. W. Hamilton is the only democratic candidate for railroad commissioner in the 3rd district, which is largely republican, there will hardly be either a halcyon or vociferous time at the convention to nominate a candidate at Winchester on the 26th. There will at least be no reason for the presence of givers or takers of bribes.
